THE ASSURANCE OF GOD'S UNBREAKABLE PROMISES

By the trustees and staff of Urantia Foundation

When we purchase an appliance, automobile, or cell phone with a warranty, we feel reassured. Home insurance policies provide comfort in knowing that damages will be paid for. Health insurance gives us peace of mind. Unfortunately, even the best warranties come with fine print defining an escape clause for the insurer. They also lapse and expire.

How about receiving eternal promises with unbreakable assurances? Does that sound too good to be true? It's not! The Urantia Book is full of such promises. These commitments come from the heart of the First Source and Center and are implemented by our own Creator Son and Creative Mother Spirit.

Machiventa Melchizedek assured us of "the great Urantian agreement between divinity and humanity whereby God agrees to do everything; man only agrees to believe God's promises and follow his instructions." 93:6.4 (1020.7)

In today's uncertain world, readers of The Urantia Book are assured of the Father's presence, loving-kindness, compassion, and everlasting mercy. We are comforted and guided by Jesus through his Spirit of Truth. We are thrilled at the promise that "the goal of eternity is ahead! The adventure of divinity attainment lies before you!" 32:5.8 (365.4)

Five generous donors have agreed to contribute $215,000 which will be matched dollar for dollar if we raise the same amount by Saturday, December 31. Your gift to Urantia Foundation will help transform lives, and eventually the world, because it is our mission—our promise to you—to seed The Urantia Book and its teachings globally.

If you have already donated, thank you! If not, please help us reach our goal and contribute to the 2022 Winter Match.

May our heavenly Father's love fill you and your family with courageous loyalty and undying hope.

THE CULTURAL ADVISORY COUNCIL WELCOMES POLAND

By Krystyna Wardega-Piasecka, Sandnes, Norway

It was an honor for me to introduce Poland on behalf of the Foundation's Cultural Advisory Council. Especially since, as an ordinary Polish reader who currently lives in Norway, I didn't think I could face such a special responsibility. During my presentation at the October meeting of the Board of Trustees, I wanted to introduce Poland in such a way as to allow others to get to know the Polish nation better. Out of a huge number of facts, I presented those that are not commonly known. To me, it is the people, not the territory, that form the country.

Poland is often referred to as an Eastern European country. This term is related to nomenclature dating back to the Cold War or earlier. Depending on the type of criterion adopted, the geographical center of Europe is located somewhat east of Poland.

Poles, along with many other Europeans, belong to the cultural group called Slavs, which brings together many ethnic groups sharing similar values, culture, and beliefs. Let the Slavic attitude, which captures values outlined in The Urantia Book, be commonly known: "Guest at home, God at home."

European history, including Poland, is turbulent. In the last millennium, Poland's borders have changed many times. After the union between the Polish and Lithuanian nations, the territory was partitioned by neighboring countries three times, until it disappeared from world maps for 123 years. Subsequently, the territory was the scene of two world wars, as well as the Cold War. It was the shared values and ideals that held the society together and allowed it to survive.

Here is a time-lapse video showing the borders of Poland from 990 to the present. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=66y49BnxLfQ>

Numerous university studies are devoted to the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth. A special research center dedicated to the historical, social, and cultural legacy of this very union has been established at the University of Aberdeen. This commonwealth, established in 1569, was one of the largest—if not the largest—European states of its time. Some researchers note that this union was something different from earlier and later ones, and call it a "fraternal union of people, not states."

One feature worth mentioning is the liberum veto—based on the thesis that there will always be someone righteous to say "I disagree"—the right of an individual to end a session of the Sejm (the national legislature). Others include the first free royal elections (1573); the merger of the Orthodox Church with the Roman Catholic Church (1596); and Europe's first, and the world's second, constitution (1791).

Statistics Office surveys show homogeneity of religion. As many as 90% of those surveyed declared their belonging to the Roman Catholic Church in 2018. However, there have been significant changes in recent years. The Center for Public Opinion Research (CBOS) shows that there has been an overall continuous decline in people participating in religious practices. The younger the group, the higher the percentage of non-practitioners. This decline suggests that Poles declare their faith but are moving away from the institution of the church.

Poles are a nation of hardworking, courageous, resourceful, and persistent people of action. A country of many Nobel Prize winners, explorers, discoverers, mathematicians, physicists, writers, and artists whose achievements we benefit from every day. You probably know of more than one famous person from Poland but wouldn't suspect them of being born there.

The tumultuous history of Poland has led to mistrust among Poles. Perhaps this explains why activities relating to The Urantia Book tend to be mostly individualistic. Sociologists have predicted that Poles will eventually overcome generations of inherited distrust and begin to act together, sharing insights. They will broaden and enrich each other's perspectives and insights through cooperation.

With almost 8,000 books in print, the number of readers of Księgi Urantii is growing. It will be good to see a cohesive community grow through participating in Polish study groups, Urantia Book International School online courses, and social media. It is in the youngest generation of seekers that the power to make change lies, and it is in their direction that we should look.

In 2023, the four members of the Cultural Advisory Council will be planning virtual meetings between local readers and Foundation trustees. This could bring important and positive changes for what is one of the most numerous European reading groups.

NURTURING THE REVELATION IN THE PHILIPPINES

By Belen Asidao, Illinois,
United States

Editor's Note: The Asidaos began their personal outreach program in the Philippines in 2014. Urantia Foundation has supported their efforts through the donation of hundreds of Urantia Books. Thanks to Eugene and Belen's generous and selfless service, the local readership has grown steadily, and the Filipino translation team is making great progress.

After two and a half years in quarantine, my husband Eugene and I prayed that the COVID epidemic would end. We longed for the day when Urantia Book study groups could once again meet face to face. Above all, we were excited to return to our country of origin, the Philippines, so we could continue the outreach work begun almost a decade ago.

Months before the pandemic tapered off, we optimistically asked Urantia Foundation for additional copies of The Urantia Book. Whereas book shipping used to take two to three months to reach the Philippines, it took almost a year for the last shipment to reach its destination. But the books did finally arrive, and so did we.

Since 2014, we had traveled almost the entire country, donating Urantia Books to public libraries of universities, colleges, trade schools, and even one resort. Yet in this archipelago of 7,100 islands, hundreds of libraries still lacked a copy. Having recently felt comfortable traveling again, we resolved to continue our dissemination work to libraries we hadn't visited before. I am pleased to report that in the last three months, more than 100 books were placed on these shelves.

We also received many requests for books during our Jesus' birthday celebration in August, where nearly 50 attendees gathered. These books are going to new readers, who eagerly join local study groups. Zoom is an alternative for those living far apart.

While many of these readers start with Part IV, "The Life and Teachings of Jesus," others read sequentially from Paper 1. What a joy to see kindred souls longing for revealed truth! Worth noting is the interest of the youth, some as young as 14, who attend study groups by their own choosing. To the delight of their parents, children come in to say hello and show off their schoolwork while the adults study.

Since our last visit in 2019, there has also been progress in the work of translating The Urantia Book into Filipino. After the national conference in November of that year, the translation team met and reached agreement regarding the daunting work of bringing the spiritual teachings of the revelation to the Philippines. First, each translator agreed to spend two full years reading the book before embarking on their labor of love. They pledged tolerance for the points of view of every other member of the team, along with the humility to seek advice and counsel on passages that are not well understood.

The team also agreed to set up practical guidelines regarding the frequency and duration of meetings. For example, the team meets three to four times a week on Zoom, for three to four hours each day. The more often the group meets, the better and faster their progress. When power outages occur, each member adjusts and compensates for the lost hours. Confidentiality is observed among the team members, who refrain from discussing the details with inquirers. And each session begins with prayers for spiritual guidance.

Most importantly, there is unity in spirit. God gives us each a unique personality, and we are each indwelt with a fragment of the Father. As Jesus said, "When did I teach you that you should all see alike? . . . You do not have to see alike or feel alike or even think alike in order spiritually to be alike." 141:5.1 (1591.6)

Yes, teamwork is what the revelators want from us mortals! While translation software is helpful, the translators impart the soul and depth of meaning to the work of the celestial revelators. Layer by layer, as we pursue the best and highest of each meaning from English into Filipino, we have been enriched spiritually in body, mind, and spirit.

As of now, Papers 1 through 36 have been translated and submitted to Urantia Foundation. We appreciate all the donors who support the propagation of the fifth epochal revelation in the Philippines: "Life is but a day's work. . . . The act is ours; the consequences God's." 48:7.13 (556.13)

Please pray for us as we continue with this profound spiritual undertaking.

OUR URANTIA BOOK STAND AT THE CALI, COLOMBIA BOOKFAIR

By Norma Caicedo Ramirez, Cali, Colombia

Editor's Note: Urantia Foundation values the importance of attending bookfairs to further its mission to seed The Urantia Book and its teachings globally. As a part of the outreach program, we donated 100 copies of El libro de Urantia to the Cali Association Colombia. Thank you to all the volunteers who spent time sharing the teachings at this fair!

What a wonderful experience it was for our group of volunteers to host a booth at La Feria Internacional del Libro de Cali, the seventh international bookfair hosted in Cali, Colombia, this past October! With record attendance, 420,000 people walked the aisles and bought 247,000 books.

It was our fourth time at this bookfair, and our space felt magical. Filled with love for this revelation, we were all moved to participate and share with others these transforming teachings.

To attract interest, our booth had posters of the master universe and the ascension path, the flag of Nebadon, and of course many copies of El libro de Urantia that Urantia Foundation provided.

We handed out a flyer with an image of the book, a guiding message, and a QR code with email addresses so people can connect with us in the future. In addition, we hosted a workshop event, "From Urantia to Paradise."

Our volunteers demonstrated their great enthusiasm by personally communicating with the visitors to our booth. More than 4,000 people showed interest in knowing more about El libro de Urantia. We sold 64 books and are thrilled that the message of the revelation is reaching more people!

We believe that bookfairs are important events for readers to attend and host booths. Truth seekers will surely attend these fairs, so it's the perfect opportunity to present the book and allow seekers to find the fifth epochal revelation.

THIRD EUROPEAN CONFERENCE OF URANTIA BOOK READERS— OVERCOMING MATERIALISM AND ENLIGHTENING EUROPE

By Olga López Molina, trustee, Urantia Foundation, Vilanova i la Geltrú, Spain

The Third European Conference of Urantia Book Readers was held October 20–23, 2022. Almost 70 readers gathered from Europe and the rest of the world. They came from as far away as Georgia in eastern Europe to the United States and Argentina in the Americas. The conference site was the Sol Torremolinos—Don Pablo Hotel in Málaga, Spain. With almost summerlike temperatures, we were able to enjoy not only the weather, but also the good company of readers and the activities related to the theme of the conference—self-mastery.

The conference had a practical focus so that attendees would return home with new ideas and tools to improve the art of self-mastery in light of the teachings of The Urantia Book. Two tracks were offered in English and Spanish, with workshops that were separate but always focused on self-mastery. As the tracks developed independently, the approaches were different but equally enriching. There were also joint activities that maintained the cohesion of the group of attendees thanks to the translation services.

Since this was the first international face-to-face conference since the outbreak of the pandemic, everyone was eager to meet face to face again and catch up. For this reason, the organizers (whom I thank for their hard work) wanted to encourage social interactions by including two excursions in the program.

On Friday morning, we visited the Dolmens of Antequera, a World Heritage site with megalithic monuments older than Stonehenge and the pyramids of Egypt. On Saturday evening, we walked through the city of Málaga accompanied by a guide who reviewed the millenary history of the city, which was founded by the Phoenicians. We heard anecdotes about several sites and the character of the local people. Afterwards we enjoyed dinner at a restaurant located on one of the beaches of Málaga.

This was my first conference as a trustee of Urantia Foundation, and I appreciated meeting new readers and cultivating old friendships. I spent time listening carefully and trying to look beyond the program of activities to gauge the health of the Urantia community in Europe. I must say that the development of the community of readers on this continent continues apace.

There are capable leaders who are working tirelessly to keep the community cohesive. I also saw that the presentations and workshops have evolved: their format has diversified; the content has deepened; the participation of the readers is more sought after. Above all that, there is more focus on applying the teachings in our daily lives.

For all the above reasons, I am certain that a milestone has been reached in the development of the European reading community. Despite being scattered throughout many countries and speaking different languages, European readers have created a common space from which to build a network of support to overcome materialism and enlighten Europe.

SHARING THE URANTIA BOOK

By the Prisoner Inquiry Response Team (PIRT), a program of Urantia Association International

Editor's Note: Over the past year News Online has featured a series of articles by individuals who write about how they share The Urantia Book and its teachings with others. We now shift our focus to outreach groups, who collectively share the book and its teachings. We hope their stories will inspire you!

The Prisoner Inquiry Response Team (PIRT) is the longest running Urantia Book dissemination project in the history of Urantia Association International. Its origin is even older. Before PIRT existed, a notable number of letters from inmates began arriving at Urantia Foundation following the seeding of 300 copies of The Urantia Book into prison libraries by Liz Cratty in 2000. The letters and book requests were handled by the Foundation's Reader Services Department. As the number of letters kept growing, assistance from the Association was requested. A service team devoted to providing Urantia Books to incarcerated readers and seekers developed, and PIRT became an official program of the Association.

PIRT replies to each letter sent by an inmate, and books are sent to all who ask for one. A volunteer manages the shipping of 20 to 40 books every month, including to prison libraries and chaplains who hear about The Urantia Book from inmates. We thank Urantia Foundation for providing us with their returned books and for offering a good discount on new books.

Since inmates are not allowed to go online to search and connect with groups, PIRT is their primary contact to support their studies of The Urantia Book. We try to answer questions about the teachings, and we send what materials we can, which they often share with their fellows and family. We also support them in their inmate-led study groups.

All who have participated in and contributed to this service throughout its history feel blessed to have assisted truth seekers in discovering the benefits of revealed religion. Following are a few personal words about our service from an inmate and current volunteers who share The Urantia Book with our brethren living in some of the darkest corners of Urantia—prisons.

From an Inmate in the USA

"Thank you for reaching out to me. It's good to know that I am being given answers to my inner plea to know the truth of my existence and what is my destiny. I have received a copy of The Urantia Book and am finding peace of mind knowing how much celestial help is placed before me, especially when it comes to my knowing how I have a God fragment living within my mind. Truly we are all blessed. My life is now seen through spiritual eyes. I see now that I am on the shores of a vast opportunity to experience myself finding God. I understand my part in this universal play and am willing to do the will of God. It starts with my leading others to the truth by leading by example. I am not only a searcher of truth, but I wish for others to find God within. I want to thank you—and all who are helping in this mission of caring about prisoners—for guiding me and opening the doors to my destiny."

From a PIRT Volunteer: Following Jesus' Teachings

"A friend helped me become more conscious of Jesus' teaching affirming all people are children of God, including incarcerated individuals. Helping prisoners realize they are included, helping them choose spiritual values is a role that I can easily accept. The Urantia Book helps them see they really are known on High and are loved, valued. Helping them choose Urantia Book teachings is part of Jesus' commission to 'go into all the world proclaiming this gospel to all nations, to every man, woman, and child.'" 165:6.3 (1824.6)

From a PIRT Volunteer: Letters from Spanish Readers

"I answer the prisoner mail that is written in Spanish, requesting El libro de Urantia. Most of the letters I receive are from inmates who have heard about the book by word of mouth from another friend in prison. Sometimes there is a bilingual person who has an English copy of the book and translates it for Spanish-speaking inmates, until someone finally writes asking if we have the book in Spanish. It is truly a pleasure to respond to their letters, and I like to send along a couple of pages printed from El libro whenever I write. Hopefully this primes them with a little excitement for reading the book when it arrives. It also gives them something that they can easily share with friends."

From a PIRT Volunteer: Morontia Mota

"It had not occurred to me, when I joined PIRT at its formation 17 years ago, that our group would be participating in realizing a morontia mota teaching. But here it is:

Knowledge is possessed only by sharing; it is safeguarded by wisdom and socialized by love.
48:7:28 (557.12)

"I will tell you this: inmates can ask difficult questions! This one, for example: 'After reading "Government on a Neighboring Planet" in dealing with crime, sentencing to life in detention colonies those believed to be potential criminals is marked as a positive era of law. What does that mean?'

"Here is where the knowledge 'safeguarded by wisdom' of this mota quote comes into play.

"Wisdom to answer to the complete satisfaction of the student and in a way that will ensure their continued study with the revelation.

"Our work with inmates has become a two-way ministry.

Painting by Reinaldo Dennes, Texas

We impart awareness to each other; the teacher becomes the student, and the student becomes the teacher. Every aspect of this morontia mota quote is incorporated in our work with inmates. It is truly a labor of love."

You Are Invited

We encourage fellow readers to inquire as to ways to participate. Perhaps in-person prison ministry, answering letters, or starting a local PIRT team. Over the years, we have collectively learned much about reader-led prison study groups and international service, including from a group in Finland that encountered problems in their prison library book-placement endeavor, and from our first International PIRT Director, Chris Gravel in Canada.

WHAT THE URANTIA BOOK MEANS TO ME

By Obol Sunday Jimmy, Kampala, Uganda

In my quest to learn why Melchizedek was only mentioned thrice in the Bible during my confirmation class, my teacher couldn't give me a logical answer. Rather, I was told I was too young to understand certain elements within the Bible. I was defiant and went straight to the parish pastor for answers. He told me that until one studies theology, it's hard to comprehend some biblical verses.

I felt ridiculed by the suggestion that spiritual knowledge was the domain of those initiated into religious dogmas. I protested by walking out of the confirmation class. (To this day, I do not bow to religious doctrines.) I then sought the opinion of my childhood friend Khatukhira

Bernard. He said he could not answer that question, but he took me to his parents' home, where he handed me The Urantia Book.

I remember the date the book first spoke to my conscious mind: October 9, 1998. I'd had the book for seven days when I finally opened it. The first paragraph of the Foreword is itself a revelation that takes the reader to the highest and most abstract level of discussing God, far beyond one's cultural background or worship practices.

Unfortunately, Abrahamic religion has created so much confusion, asserting that God can be understood only through the Abrahamic faith—otherwise one is seen as a pagan. The result is to divide man from God by requiring a perspective alien to people in so many cultures.

There are no greater or more magical words to be found in those Abrahamic religious books than The Urantia Book's statements about God. Even Part IV regarding Jesus' life and teachings cannot really be understood unless the reader has overcome the "conceptual poverty" that has caused them "great confusion respecting the meaning of such terms as God, divinity, and deity." 0:0.1 (1.1)

The Urantia Book removed the veil that had covered my mind then, allowing me an understanding of God—first the God within, then the God without, and finally the God in diversity beyond religious personification. The Spirit of Truth guided me in seeking truth whose revelations came through the different celestial beings, rather than being passed down through oral tradition where meanings were altered and lost. These new revelations serve the higher purpose of truth in ensuring the realization of the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God among Urantia mortals.

Here's a story that may help explain what the book means to me personally. As a child of about six years, I used to live with my stepmom. It so happened that once when my mum visited, I stole some money of hers, something I had never done before. It happened because I was jealous of the lives of my classmates. I spent some of it and returned home. She checked my pocket and found the change. After she gave me a harsh talking-to, I remained alone and heard a voice speak to me, saying "go apologize to her, and give her back the remaining money." I heeded the voice, and felt a weight lifted off my shoulders, as my mum said, "it's not your fault, son!"

So, what does The Urantia Book mean to me? The key is the Thought Adjuster, whose leading I believe I experienced as a young child, showing me how freewill choice comes in handy once one has tuned oneself to the voice of the Adjuster, who is the bridge between the Universal Father and the imperfect mortal mind.

In Paper 2, a Divine Counselor tells us that "divine mercy represents a fairness technique of adjustment between the universe levels of perfection and imperfection." 2:4.5 (38.5) And we also read in that same section that "mercy is simply justice tempered by that wisdom which grows out of perfection of knowledge and the full recognition of the natural weaknesses and environmental handicaps of finite creatures." 2:4:1 (38.1) This mercy ministry does not directly convey the realization of the perfection of divine love, but that was revealed to me later as I grew to appreciate the intervention of divine mercy.

What prospects do I see for sharing this revelation with others? In the end, the ambiguity of the God concept can only be appreciated when local cultural deity meanings are embraced in harnessing humanity diversity. To address this need, I can envision a future in which Uganda, already in the heart of Africa, may become a hub for the revelation of The Urantia Book in Africa, a place to anchor the global Urantia Book movement for the realization of the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God.
